Trydimensional thrives on free expression, feeds on experience and experimentation, and forges a very personal and unpretentious, yet sophisticated, music. A blend of genres and influences, including fusion, new wave, alternative and progressive rock – offering thus a 'new indie' sound for the progressive 21st century listener.

The project stems from the joint efforts of three musicians active on the local and national scenes, building on their experiences acquired over the years in a variety of musical genres, including rock, pop, electronic music, and free improvisation. All this has converged into Trydimensional, as a space for the free expression and playful creation of ideas – a project developed not as a product but as a pleasant dialogue between friends about music and with music.
